

Teagan R. Dreyer
Doctoral Student, History
Oklahoma State University
Teagan.dreyer@okstate.edu

Education

PhD in History in progress; Oklahoma State University
M.A. in American Studies; Northeastern State University (2020).
B.S. in Liberal Studies; Southwestern Christian University (2018).
A.S. In Pre-Education Secondary; Oklahoma State University (2016).

Employment

- Teaching Associate, Oklahoma State University
- Veteran's Day "Making History" Project Archivist, First Americans Museum
- Tutor, Oklahoma State University Institute of Technology
- Tutor, College of the Muscogee (Creek) Nation

Organizations

- Student Representative, Southwestern Oral History Association (2020-2022)
- Graduate Student, Organization of American Historians Committee on the Status of Women in the Historical Profession

Areas of Research

- Native American experiences within boarding schools in what became Oklahoma in the twentieth century.
- Tribal educational interventions and education as a part of self-determination efforts.
- Native American responses to assimilation and urbanization policy in the late twentieth century.
- Native American activism in education through they twentieth century to the present.

Conference Presentations

Dr. King, Farina, Teagan Dreyer, Lindsey Chapman, and Gunnar Hatfield, "Service Learning and Practicing Oral History with Dine and Cherokee Communities," Southwestern Oral History Virtual Conference 2020.

Dr. King, Farina, Teagan Dreyer, Ernestine Berry, Midge Dellinger, "Service Learning and Practicing Oral History with Dine and Cherokee Communities," Northeastern State University Symposium on the American Indian Virtual Symposium 2021.

Elizabeth Rule, Teagan Dreyer, Zonnie Gorman, and Midge Dellinger, “Indigenous Oral Histories: Lives and Memories that Matter,” Southwestern Oral History Association Annual Conference 2022.

Attended Panels and Seminars

American Philosophical Society Indigenous Studies Seminar (November 2021)

Newberry Consortium in American Indian Studies Graduate Spring Workshop “Extractivism: Environments and Epistemologies” (Spring 2022)

Newberry Consortium in American Indian Studies Graduate Summer Workshop “Land, Water, and the Indigenous Archive: Art and Activism in the Mississippi River Network” (Summer 2022)

Community and Volunteer Work

Worked with Dr. Farina King on her project “Bringing Home Intermountain”. This work included presenting to and interacting with the Native community in Monument Valley on the Navajo Reservation.

Veteran's Day "Making History" Project Archivist for the First Americans Museum in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. This project was in part to reach out to Native veterans along with building the museums archive.

Graduate Student Outreach Committee – Oklahoma State University 2022

Regional History Day Judge – Region 3 through the School of Teaching, Education, and Learning 2022