In conversation with HI co-directors Jennifer Borland and Sarah Milligan, Jennie Burroughs will discuss opportunities and impacts of collaborative research in the humanities, sharing insights gleaned from her experiences with team research scholarship.

Her work focuses on teaching and research services provided by liaison librarians, library learning services, libraries-wide space planning, digital scholarship services, and equity and inclusion. Burroughs led the inception of the Digital Arts, Sciences, and Humanities (DASH) program at U of MN. Her current research is on multi-disciplinary collaboration and humanities research collaboration behaviors.
