

GRADUATE SPECIALITY AREA – Social Movements

DEPARTMENT OF
SOCIOLOGY
College of Arts and Sciences

WHY STUDY SOCIAL MOVEMENTS?

Sociologists study social movements to understand how collective action can transform social order, cultural values and ideologies, economic relations, and hierarchies. Professional sociologists study strategies used to establish connections among organizers and explore how people and ideas migrate, generating transnational connections.

Oklahoma State University faculty interests include: environmental movements, organization networks, anti-environmentalism as a counter-movement, group processes, social networks and political sociology.

FACULTY WITHIN THIS SPECIALITY AREA:

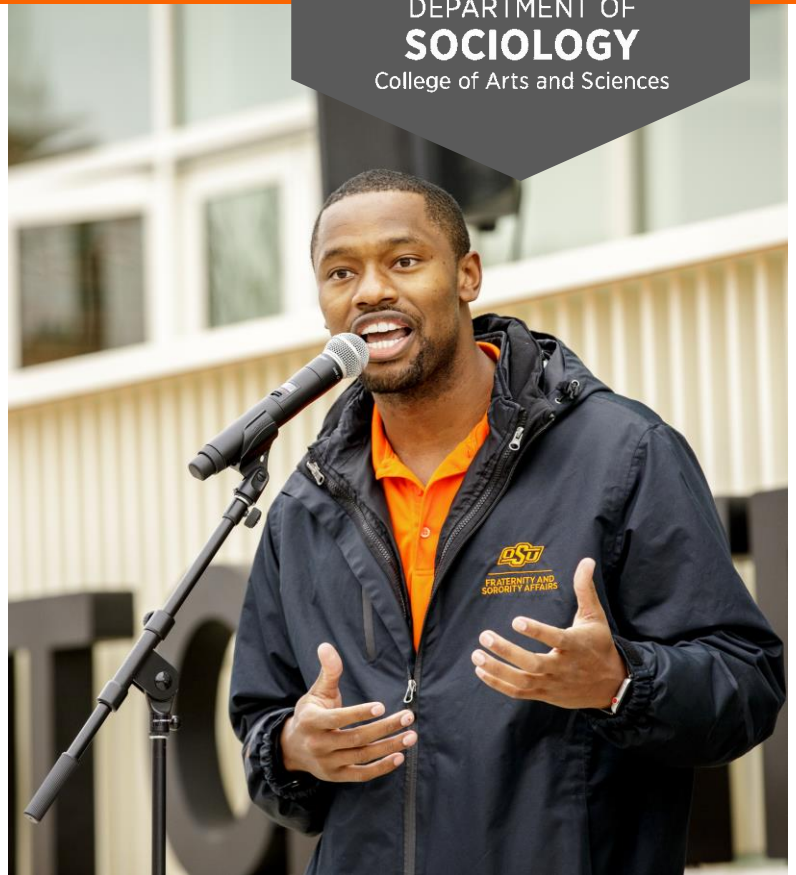

DR. JONATHAN COLEY

DR. ANDREW FULLERTON

DR. CHAD MALONE

DR. TAMARA MIX

DR. MONICA WHITHAM

SOCIAL MOVEMENTS GRADUATE COURSES:

- SOC 5323: SEMINAR ON COLLECTIVE BEHAVIOR & SOCIAL MOVEMENTS*
- SOC 5473: SEMINAR ON THE CONTEMPORARY ENVIRONMENTAL MOVEMENT
- SOC 5493: SEMINAR ON ENVIRONMENTAL JUSTICE
- SOC 5950: ADVANCED STUDIES IN SOCIAL MOVEMENTS
- SOC 5990: ADVANCED TOPICS IN SOCIOLOGY

*REQUIRED COURSE