As a Political Science major, you will not only be prepared for an ever-changing job market, but you will also develop a passion for politics — ready to answer the questions and participate in the vital work required of democratic citizens in the twenty-first century!

- Which skills will prepare you for your role as a leader in your community, be it in local politics or national governance?
- What practices and processes help ensure a fair and just society for all individuals?
- How can you do your part to understand and address challenges to national security, including climate change, war, and terrorism?
- What can you learn about effective governance and policymaking by studying countries from across the world?

The Political Science Department has opened countless opportunities to me as an undergraduate. Faculty and staff helped me realize my potential beyond the classroom through getting me involved in undergraduate research. Through the Political Science Department, I have found my passion, traveled, and developed myself substantially as a scholar.
